

SEA WAR RISK RATES
TO BE CUT 75 PER CENT.

Treasury Advisers Recommend Reduction From Two to One-Half of One Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Treasury advisers to-day recommended to Secretary McAdoo that war risk insurance rates on hulls, cargoes and seamen's lives be reduced 75 per cent.

This means that rates on ships and their cargoes through the former war-zone will be reduced from two and one-half to one per cent, with other rates cut accordingly. Secretary McAdoo is expected to approve the suggestion immediately.

Treasury officials explained that although the submarine has been abandoned, risk still exists on account of floating mines and the possibility that some submarines may run amuck.

THE MATTER OF INTEREST.
(From the Boston Transcript.)
The young woman complained that no one seemed interested in her. "My child," said the sage, "you should show interest in other people, and then they'll get interested in you because you seem interested in them."ARMY AND POLICE
SHARING HONORS
AT HORSE SHOW

Officers to Exhibit Steeds While Mounted Bluecoats Give a Drill.

Streets about Madison Square Garden looked like country lanes early this morning, as many horses were being led through them for exercising walks in anticipation of the second day of the Horse Show in Madison Square Garden for the benefit of the United War Work campaign. Judging at the Horse Show began at 11 o'clock this morning.

Exhibitors had the privilege of exercising their horses on the tan bark ring for two hours before the judging began.

Some on horseback were Miss Eleanor H. Sears of Boston, on the chestnut gelding Radiant; Mrs. Walter H. Hanley of Providence, on the bay Twilight; Miss Helen Bacon, on W. A. McGibbon's chestnut Flashlight; Mrs. P. A. Clark, on Mrs. F. S. von Stabe's hunter Frank Wooden; Miss Janice Liggett, on J. Campbell

Thompson's hunter Rory O'More, and Miss Ivy Maddison, on Charles D. Lanier's hunter Belling.
Many were driving in the ring. This is Military Day and several of the most important competitions in which officers are to take part will be decided. The evening programme includes a drill by a detail of forty mounted policemen of the New York Traffic Squad. All soldiers and sailors in uniform will be admitted free during the show.

The first class this morning was for qualified hunters, which were sent over the regular jumps.

RICHARD A. CLAYBROOK DIES.

Mr. Claybrook was New York manager of the Eagle Rolling Mill Company and the representative here of the Century Milling Company of Minneapolis. He served as President of the Produce Exchange from June, 1917, to June, 1918, and was re-elected to serve for another year, but was forced to resign in July on the advice of his doctors, as his health had broken down. Mr. Claybrook had been ill for several months with complications that followed a severe cold.

TO REMAIN IN SERVICE
UNTIL ARMY COMES HOME

EDMUND D. GUGGENHEIM

Official of Copper Companies Made Big Sacrifices to Enter Motor Transport Corps.

One of New York's wealthy young men who made a big sacrifice to enter the military service and who despite the signing of the armistice expects to remain until the demobilization of the army now in Europe is Edmund A. Guggenheim, a member of the firm of Guggenheim Bros., vice-president of two of their largest copper companies, a director in others and manager of operations, including transportation. He is now in the Motor Transport Corps, for which officers are in training at Camp Meigs, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Guggenheim, who is thirty years of age, married and has a daughter, was in the first draft but was exempted for industrial reasons, the production and manufacture of copper then being a prime factor in the war. He entered the Motor Transport Corps more than a month ago, having had experience in transportation lines.

He is the only son of Murray Guggenheim and lives at No. 927 Fifth Avenue, with a summer home at Saranac Lake.

ADMIRING CROWDS 'MUSS UP'
MAN WHO LOOKS LIKE WILSON

Peace Celebrators Will Not Believe School Official Is Not President of United States.

Looking like President Wilson is not as much fun as it is cracked up to be—take it from James J. McCabe, a district superintendent of schools, who lives at No. 614 St. Marks Avenue, Brooklyn. He was the centre of admiring throngs of peace celebrators in various parts of New York.

Mr. McCabe is a few inches taller than the President, but they are very much alike in features and figure, and even wear the same kind of glasses.

Incidentally, each has been a college professor.
The first disturbance over Mr. McCabe yesterday occurred at 43d Street and Broadway when someone in the vast throng shouted "There's the President." Thousands clamored around him and he was considerably the worse for wear when he escaped. He had the same experience later when he walked down Broadway, and even when he sought refuge in the Friars Club. "I've been mistaken for the President many times, but of course never before under circumstances like those of yesterday," said Mr. McCabe to-day. "Even in Washington I have been greeted as the President in hotels and on the streets. Usually a few minutes conversation was all that was necessary to correct the mistake, but yesterday it was different. The crowds simply threw denials to the winds. "I was pretty badly mussed up by the crowds. But what New Yorker minded a little thing like that on a day like yesterday?"INFLUENZA

"The Day" Has Come
The Big Job's Done

Allied and American heroism, with the help of Almighty God, and with the Holy Spirit and strength of a whole world of Freemen back of it, has Conquered—The Prussian Beast and his welp lie dead or caged—"The Day" of the Hun, when might was to become right and Liberty was to be chained, shall never come. Henceforth, Freedom reigns for all, and forever. May God's Mercy be upon our own and the Allied dead, His blessing on the living, whose heroism and sacrifice made this day possible.

One other thing, exceedingly insignificant, though it appears in comparison, makes this a most wonderful day for us, for it is
